In the late nineteenth century, Austro-Hungarian and Italian officials often sought to encourage seasonal or intra-European migration as an alternative to emigration overseas. This was both because...